I met Hans at the tennis courts at Ala Moana Park in the mid- '70s. We played a set of tennis, which started a friendship that included going to church at First Presbyterian in Honolulu, where I met his wife Lynn. I worked downtown at American Optical, & lived on Luulu Street in Manoa Valley. He introduced me to his mother & brother at her home where he was raised. I once asked him what he did in the Airforce, & he told me he was on the US Airforce Ping Pong Team stationed in England/Europe. We both laughed. He was a very jovial, fun to be around guy. When I was in the Navy years later I was in a school in San Diego which had photos of graduates dating back to the '50s hanging on the Quarter deck walls. Curiously enough, some, a few classes had Airforce personnel with Navy counterparts. Because it was a tough course with high attrition rate there were maybe eight to ten in one frame that caught my attention, because Hans was one of them. Yep, that'll get you on the "ping pong" team, for sure, I thought, smiling wryly. It fit. Hans had told me some surf stories- the North Shore, Sunset Beach, &tc. Anyway, over the years I thought often of his goodwill & kindness to me. He was a true brother. I always missed him, a truly good, humble man of great stature. It was an honor & privilege to have known him. Respectfully, Tom Lanagan

Hans was very special to me, during the most scary part of my life. He was the sweetest man that I have ever met, and I loved going to Bible Study with him. I last saw Hans in December 2005, but I thought of him often after he left for Florida. Happy birthday in Heaven, Hans. You were a soft light with a warm glow, supporting me during a very dark period. I will always miss you. Lori Randell
