“ My baby spud its took this long to put words together. Being your big sister was so awesome. We shared so much almost 40 yrs I had the privilege of being your sister. From you crawling in my bed at grandma and poppys cuz you couldn't sleep alone watching twilight zone till the tv turned to snow cuz it was the 80s then having to call an ambulance cuz you ate 5 mayonnaise sandwiches and went swimming then as an aunt watching my baby brother become a man you scheduled holidays to be with me or the pool but I step into my shower cuz you tiled the bottom and look at my screen porch cuz you stood on a 2x4 over the pool to hang it. Your only request was to have some music and food. We would always end the night with more I love yous than anything comfort tv maybe some snacks and I knew the next day I would bring you coffee and an egg sandwich and I'd a groggy thank you sis love you I want to make you that egg sandwich buddy ...I miss you my brother

It's been over 2 yrs since I seen you but I can still see in this patio chair next to me strumming your broke ass guitar with love along to the melodies of classic rock listening to the cicadas in the background and always reminiscing about bo and Wayne. You are great brother and I really hope there is life after death so I can be there having more good times. Everything in my memory is a good time my bud. I miss you very much “ Buddy and I did so much together, Hell we were always together. Either we were hanging out at the beach or fishing off a pier. That man was like my brother, shit we were brothers. The first time I met buddy I was skateboarding at a bank and some older kids came up and started harassing us. Eventually they took are skateboards and that’s when I saw buddy walking away from the store and I ran up to him and said these older kids took and broke are skateboards can you help. Buddy was like absolutely. Buddy didn’t like bullies, he was always rooting for the under dawg. I think his words were “ you can punk them, try and punk me”. Buddy was my best friend, and my brother!!!! I’ll see you again brother!!!

He was a good hearted dude. I love that you say he hates bullies bc that is so true. He did as does my son, his nephew. My son also has a heart like buddy had. Thank you for sharing.
